WESTIN PEACHTREE PLAZA RE-OPENS WITH
ADDITIONAL 65,000 SQUARE FEET OF MEETING SPACE
Hotel Partners with 200 Peachtree

ATLANTA (September 17, 2010) – As the Westin Peachtree Plaza celebrates its grand re-opening after a multi-million dollar window replacement project, it also now offers additional meeting space for hotel guests. Guests can access an additional 65,000 square feet of meeting space through a seventh story bridge connecting the hotel to 200 Peachtree, in the former Macy's space. The two buildings offer a total of 145,000 square feet of meeting space.

“The expansion of our meeting facilities will further enable us to cater to groups of all sizes,” says Anthony Lombardi, director of sales and marketing for the Westin Peachtree Plaza. “Whether for a trade show, company-wide meeting or special event, we now have the appropriate space to fulfill all group business needs.”

With 80,000 square feet of meeting space in the hotel itself, The Westin Peachtree Plaza can handle any function with facilities and support services including technology, audiovisual, catering and a business center. The hotels' 53 meeting rooms, the grandest of which has room for up to 2,500 attendees, provide unparalleled flexibility in meeting planning.

200 Peachtree, which is connected to the hotel, a Philip Shutze-designed historic landmark, will share catering facilities with the Westin Peachtree Plaza, tapping the hotel as a preferred caterer. 200 Peachtree specializes in event space, exhibition space and will soon welcome restaurants and retail opportunities.

About the Westin Peachtree Plaza

Designed by John Portman in 1976, the Westin Peachtree Plaza is a 73-story tower, topped by the tri-level, revolving Sun Dial Restaurant Bar & View. At 723 feet, The Westin Peachtree Plaza was Atlanta's tallest building until 1987, when it was surpassed by One Atlantic Center. Today, The Westin Peachtree Plaza is the fifth tallest building in Atlanta and remains the tallest hotel in the Western Hemisphere.
